Wildlife Linkages (Arizona Wildlife Linkages Workgroup)

Wildlife linkages are areas designated by the Arizona Wildlife Linkages Workgroup to be crucial to connecting wildlife habitats. These habitats span roads, railroads, fences, canals, and urban development throughout Arizona. The non-binding recommendations can be used as an informational resource for planners and engineers to consider while developing land use plans. Wildlife linkages within the New River Focus Area are:

- Hassayampa River-Red Picacho
- Wickenburg
- Tres Alamos Wilderness
- Bradshaw Mountains-Agua Fria National Monument
- Hualapai Mountains-Bagdad

Arizona Wilderness Coalition's (AWC) Roadless Character Areas

These are wilderness and roadless areas protected by AWC on federal lands in Arizona.

2.2.4 Cultural Resources

Northern Arizona is renowned for its rich cultural heritage and exceptional array of archaeological, historic, and traditional Native American cultural resources. Considerations of the identification, preservation, and management of cultural resources are integral aspects of any future land use planning document, as these important resources define our history and heritage at the local, State, and National levels.

The benchmark used to identify historic properties for management purposes is typically their eligibility to the National Register of Historic Places (NRHP) according to guidelines issued by the Secretary of the Interior and the NPS. Historic properties include prehistoric and historic districts, sites, buildings, structures, or objects included in or eligible for inclusion in the NRHP. Historic properties may be eligible for nomination to the NRHP if they possess integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association, and meet at least one of the following criteria:

- Criterion A be associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history
- Criterion B be associated with the lives of persons significant in our past
- Criterion C embody the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction, or that represent the work of a master, or that possess high artistic values, or that represent a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction
- Criterion D have yielded, or may be likely to yield, information important in prehistory or history

Properties may be of local, state, or national importance. Typically, historic properties are at least 50 years old, but younger properties may be considered for NRHP listing if they are of exceptional importance.

Prehistorically, people have been living in the study area for over 10,000 years. Cultural traditions identified archaeologically in northern Arizona include the Paleo-Indians, Arizona's first inhabitants who hunted mega-fauna at the end of the Pleistocene (c. 10,000-8,000 B.C.) the pre-ceramic Archaic Culture which included small bands of mobile huntergatherers foraging across the landscape in seasonal rounds (ca. 8,000 B.C.-A.D. 200); the Sinagua and Anasazi cultures of the Formative period which emphasized increased reliance on agriculture, use of ceramic pottery, and sedentary village settlements (ca. A.D. 200-1500).

Today, there are ten Native American reservations within the boundaries of study area, which include the Havasupai Tribe, the Hopi Tribe, the Hualapai Tribe, the Kiabab-Paiute Tribe, the Navajo Nation, the San Juan Southern Paiute Tribe, the Yavapai-Apache Nation, and the Yavapai-Prescott Indian Tribe. In addition to these, the study area is part of the traditional rangelands of numerous other Native American communities who claim cultural affinity to the region. Natural features within the study area, such as the San Francisco Peaks near Flagstaff and the Grand Canyon in northwestern Arizona, are places of traditional cultural importance to Native American communities, with important religious, spiritual, and ceremonial significance. These locations, known as traditional cultural properties (or places) are protected under federal and State preservation laws along with archaeological sites and other places of cultural heritage.

Historical themes for the study area are numerous, spanning the early explorations of the West by the Spanish, US military, and surveyor parties, Arizona's territorial period, Statehood, the development of Arizona's mining, ranching, timber, and agricultural economies and transportation systems. Towns such as Prescott, the first capital of the Arizona Territory, and Flagstaff, the economic hub of northern Arizona for more than a century, played prominent roles in Arizona history. Today, their collections of historic buildings and districts are recognized as important heritage resources with vital roles in local economies and the tourist industry. Route 66, also known as the Main Street of America, is perhaps the most recognized historical resource within the study area, defined by its whimsical collection of in-use and abandoned road segments, historic downtowns and commercial districts, independent "mom and pop" restaurants, gas stations, curio shops, and unique road side attractions.

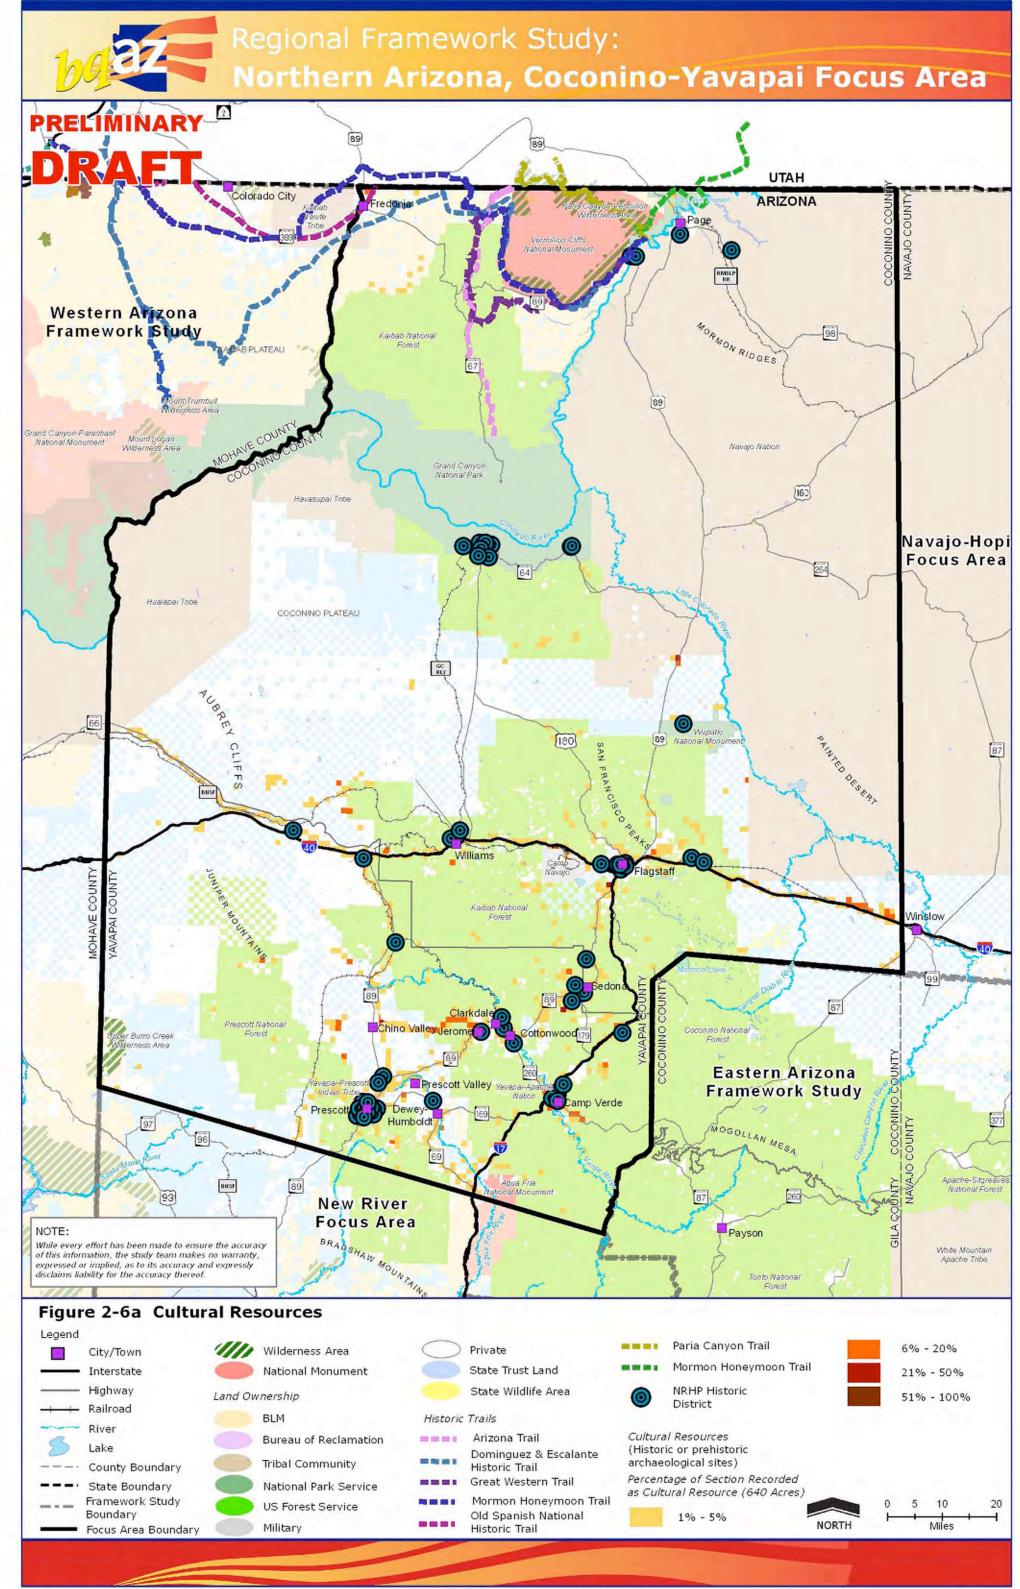

The U.S. Department of Interior NPS website lists 364 properties on the National Register of Historic Places (NRHP) within Coconino, Apache, Navajo, and Yavapai Counties (many of which are districts with multiple listings), which serve as a testament to the prevalence and importance of the study area's historical resources. Moreover, as each year passes, additional cultural resources will reach the 50 year threshold and will require evaluation for historical significance. Detailed investigation is required to identify the NRHP criterion that each property meets.

Coconino-Yavapai Focus Area

The Coconino-Yavapai Focus Area has the largest number of historic properties of each of the three Focus Areas (Figure 2-6a). Historic properties within Coconino and Yavapai Counties total 147 and 130, respectively. The following is a listing of historic properties by County.
